MANNUAL MODE

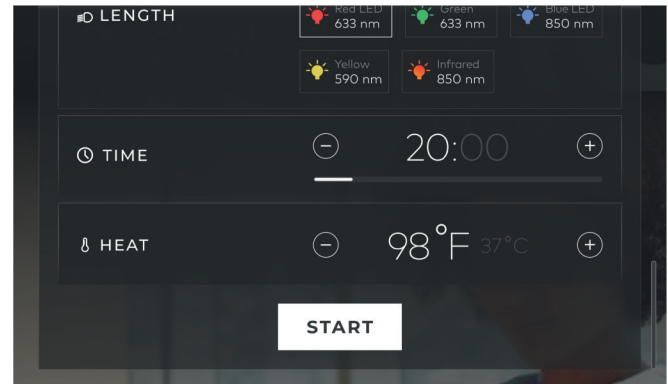

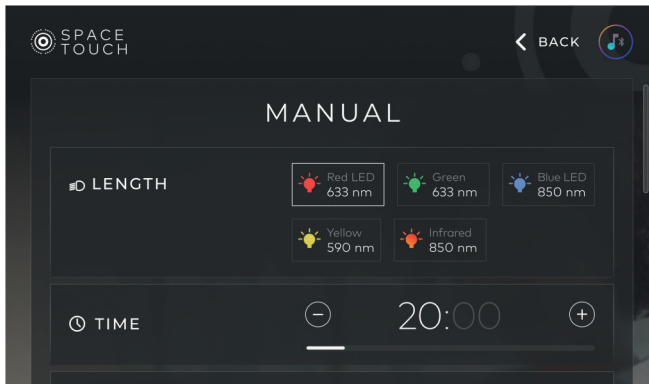

Think of your body as a rechargeable battery. Just as batteries need power to function, so do we. We constantly interact with our surroundings, drawing energy and vitality.

One of the significant ways our bodies derive this energy is from light. Low-Level Light Therapy (LLLT) harnesses the power of specific light wavelengths, delivered through Light Emitting Diodes (LEDs), to supercharge our body's natural functions.

How Does LLLT Work?

LLLT utilizes specific light wavelengths that our cells readily absorb and convert into energy. As these light beams penetrate our layers of skin, they not only prompt increased circulation but also stimulate the release of Nitric Oxide, our body's natural vasodilator. This energy surge initiates various cellular processes, from healing to regeneration and even the production of essential proteins like collagen.

With its targeted light therapy, the Atlas takes this natural rejuvenation and healing ability of our skin and amplifies it, resulting in enhanced vitality and well-being.
